

Project Guidelines: RECTC 5-7 – International Business Considerations

Introduction

This document provides guidance for Level 5 Diploma in Recruitment Leadership learners on submitting a Project for RECTC 5-7 – International Business Considerations. Three appendices are included:

- A. Proposal Form - to be completed and submitted to Study Coach/Tutor
- B. Business Plan Cover Sheet – to be completed and submitted to the RECAO with your project
- C. Assessment sheet – to be completed by the Assessor/Examiner post-submission.

1 Timetable

- Submission deadline for the Proposal - As soon as possible after enrolling
- Feedback/approval from Study Coach/Tutor - Within two weeks of receipt
- Deadline for REC to receive the final Project - 5pm on Day of the L5 Diploma examination
- Results will be issued - Six weeks after submission deadline

2 Initial steps

We strongly recommend you talk to your employer about producing the International Business Considerations project which will be a practical and comprehensive marketing plan.

The International Business Considerations project should take the form of a business presentation/plan and cover the factors that should be considered before operating internationally, the factors that should be monitored when operating internationally or why and how organisations exit international markets. A simple “documentary” describing the current international business activities of the organisation is unlikely to be sufficient to be awarded a pass for this unit. A critical analysis, combined with suggestions for implementing a new or revised strategy is required. Owner/managers undertaking this Unit should discuss, where possible, their ideas with other senior staff, advisors or appropriate stakeholders.

The International Business Considerations project may be based on an entire organisation, a section of it or at a branch/office level. If you require further guidance on the scope of the International Business Considerations project, you should contact your Study Coach/Tutor as soon as possible after enrolling.

3 Step 1

Discuss your outline ideas for the International Business Considerations project with your Study Coach/Tutor; they will advise you about the suitability.

4 Step 2

When your International Business Considerations project proposal has been verbally agreed, you will need to complete the Proposal Form, submit it to your Study Coach for sign off and then send a copy to the REC Professional Development Department in London (REC, Dorset House, First Floor, 27 - 45 Stamford Street, London SE1 9NT).

5 The Purpose of the International Business Considerations Project

The International Business Considerations project is designed to encourage you to apply what you have learned during your studies into a practical based situation and to produce evidence of a sound, well thought through International Business Considerations plan that can be implemented and evaluated/reviewed effectively.

Your International Business Considerations project should be well structured, in several sections, and each of these will provide clear evidence of knowledge and learning. Marks are awarded for different parts of the International Business Considerations project, and while a good performance in one section may compensate for a poorer performance in another, the project should be well presented demonstrating the standards expected of a professional business document.

6 Project Length

Whilst there is no maximum length for the International Business Considerations project, you should aim for a word count of around 7,500 words. Projects with fewer than 7,500 words are unlikely to achieve the necessary marks to gain a pass. The word count does not include appendices or the bibliography.

7 Content

It is essential that the International Business Considerations project is consistent with Learning Outcomes identified in the syllabus for RECTC 5-7:

1. Understand the factors that need to be considered before operating internationally
2. Understand the factors that need to be considered and monitored when operating internationally
3. Understand why and how organisations exit international markets

Where a project consists of a business plan, it should conform to the accepted structures for typical business plans, but must incorporate learning outcomes listed above.

8 Using the typical Business Plan structure

Where students opt to produce a business plan for the project, this should follow the recognised structures. A typical business plan structure is given below, showing the potential word count allocation (this is given for guidance – individual business plans may require more weighting in particular areas to be effective).

| Section Heading   | Sample content                  | Possible word allocation |
|-------------------|---------------------------------|--------------------------|
| Project title     | Brief, succinct title           |                          |
| Table of contents | Section headings and appendices |                          |

| Section Heading                         | Sample content   | Possible word allocation |
|---|--|--------------------------|
| Executive Summary/Introduction          | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Provides a summary and overview of the main objectives and activities in the international business plan. Ideally (but this is not essential), this will have input from senior management to set the plan in context. Should include reference to the overall business aims and objectives.</li> <li>This part of the plan should enable the reader to understand the salient points of the plan.</li> </ul>   | 700 words                |
| Situation/International Market Analysis | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Outlines evidence-based research, background information about the international market in which the recruiter operates/proposes to operate. Provides evidence and analysis of any research/analysis of the market including, for example, legal and cultural considerations, candidates, competitors, and so on.</li> <li>Investigations will include relevant international market demographics (market/sector) size, market/sector trends (growth, static or contracting), market requirements, any critical factors facing the organisation, knowledge of the external environment, market place and key drivers that will impact on the recruitment consultancy.</li> <li>Evaluation and interpretation of evidence used to formulate the plan. Method of entering/developing new international markets, competitor analysis and the use of appropriate tools to quantify evidence for decision making.</li> <li>Historical information will help input further evidence into this analysis, which can then be subjected to assessment. Key findings of the analysis, research and preparation work undertaken.</li> </ul> | 1,750 words              |

|---------------------------------|---|--------------------------|
| International Business Strategy | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Links in to the overall organisational business plan. It should include a statement about the recruitment consultancy and the services it delivers to international markets. This serves as a way of focussing the mind on what the recruitment consultancy mission is and ensures that the international business activities planned are in line with this. At this stage, information about the international business strategy will be presented. This will include a breakdown of any particular target groups, segments and needs.</li> <li>• The international business strategy should outline the implications for – and input required/received from - other parts of the organisation to ensure that implementation is possible</li> </ul> | 2,000 words              |
| Financial Projections           | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Take account of finance, budget and financial resources, including any capital investment required, financial projections, including sales/cost forecasts, break even analysis, cash flow forecasts and any relevant cross border transactional costs/risk assessment should be considered.</li> <li>• Financial projections will be an essential element of the next stage when evaluation is undertaken, including variance analysis, ROI and the use of KPIs.</li> <li>• Keep objectives SMART</li> </ul>   | 1,250 words              |
| Implementation Controls         | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Metrics and key performance indicators, explaining how to monitor, evaluate, control and adjust implementation of the plan. | Section Heading                           | Sample content  | Possible word allocation |
| Summary & Conclusions                     | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Summarise and offer conclusions, describe any unexpected outcomes. Who has been involved? How successful has this involvement been?</li> <li>What have you learnt about the current external and internal environment affecting international business for your organisation? What has been learnt about existing and potential international markets and how to maximise return on investment. If appropriate, what has been learnt regarding exit strategy and the implications of this for the organisation? Is the plan to be implemented, if so, are all the requirements for control outlined in the previous section in place?</li> </ul> | 500 words                |
| Reflective learning and learning outcomes | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Commentary on why you chose to look at this particular aspect of the organisation in the context of international business.</li> <li>Which diagnostic/research tools and methods have been used? How useful were they? Any difficulties that you have come across that should be mentioned?</li> <li>If you were to do this project again, what would you do differently? Any areas for further research and assessment that may be necessary to complete the marketing plan to your satisfaction?</li> </ul>  | 500 words                |

Remember: this is a business presentation, so do make effective use of appendices and supporting documentation.

9 Drafting the title for the Project

The choice of a succinct and clear title can never be overstated. As a guide, the title should give the reader a full feel for the subject and content that will be covered; it should not be drafted as a newspaper headline, but should reflect the aims and objectives of the project in unambiguous terms.

For example, let us assume that a project is looking at corporate brand management, the following title would be appropriate:

The impact of a new corporate brand personality on the marketing strategy of the permanent recruitment division of XYZ Recruitment Limited

Whereas, the title below is too loose and fails to give the reader any idea of what may be contained:

Out with the old and in with new

As well as assisting the reader, a good title will ensure that you keep on track within the defined parameters that you are looking to cover. Projects that have long winded, verbose and broad generalisations in the title often suffer from precisely these issues in terms of the content. Candidates are therefore recommended to constantly remind themselves of the title that they have chosen, to ensure the content remains relevant and consistent.

The wording you adopt for your title at the outset will have a huge impact on the quality of the work produced – so, do take great care with this stage.

10 Study Coach/Tutor support

You will be allocated a Study Coach/Tutor to support you with your International Business Considerations Project.

Your Study Coach/Tutor will offer advice regarding your International Business Considerations project, research methods and give you written feedback on your draft project.

11 Confidentiality of information

Your International Business Considerations project will be seen by the REC Qualifications Team, The Unit Chief Examiner, Awarding Committee members and Assessors. Whilst the REC will do all it can to keep information confidential, it is your responsibility to ensure that you do not include any information which candidates or clients would consider confidential.

12 Quoting from textbooks and other sources

You may wish to gather material and ideas from outside sources. This might include text books, articles in magazines or newspapers and websites.

Where you quote directly from texts to illustrate a point you must indicate who the author is, the book title, and the page number in the original text. Quotations and source material should be referenced as follows:

Example – Citing a textbook:

Refer to the author(s), the date of publication, the full title, where it was published, and the publisher:

Handy, Charles (1995). The Age of Unreason. London: Random House.

You can do this in the body of your International Business Considerations Project, e.g. “Handy (1995)” – or you can use footnotes. List all your sources in a bibliography at the end. Good referencing shows the examiner that you have done some background reading and also helps you to find sources at a later date.

The Internet:

The Internet is a source of useful research information. Where possible, be selective in the sites you choose, making sure that they have a sound theoretical basis. Information used from the Internet should also be included in the bibliography by indicating author, year of publication, article, and Internet address, e.g.:

Starke, A. (1996) Internet recruitment shows rapid growth. Online article available at: <http://www.shrm.org/hrmagazine/articles/0896rec.htm> [Accessed 25 September 2002]

13 Plagiarism

When submitting your International Business Considerations project, you do so on the basis that it is an original piece of work.

Examples of plagiarism include:

- Verbatim copying of another person's work without acknowledgement
- Close paraphrasing of another person's work by simply changing a few words or altering the order of presentation, without acknowledgement
- Unacknowledged quotation of phrases from another person's work
- Deliberate presentation of another person's ideas as your own
- Copying or close paraphrasing with occasional acknowledgement of source may also be deemed to be plagiarism if the absence of quotation marks implies that the phraseology is the student's own
- Copying of data

It is acceptable to quote from other sources, but you must give full acknowledgement to your sources. These may include text books, journal articles, Internet articles, company documents etc.

If you are working alongside someone else who is a current or past REC candidate, make sure that you do not submit any project material which has already been used, or will be used, by another candidate entering an REC Level 5 Diploma in Recruitment Leadership project.

Plagiarism may result in your work not being accepted for marking.

14 Statement of Authenticity

A Project Cover Sheet must be attached to your project when submitting and must be signed by you and by your employer (or other responsible person) to confirm that it is your work. The REC reserves the right not to accept for assessment any project which does not have an appropriately completed and signed Cover Sheet, or any project where plagiarism (see above) is suspected.

15 Late submission

Permission for late submission of projects is given in exceptional circumstances. Any request must be in writing to the RECAO (not to your Study Coach/Tutor) explaining the reason for late submission. The RECAO reserves the right not to assess any work submitted late without written permission.

16 Checklist on Format and Presentation

- ✓ Clearly written, spell-checked, grammatically correct and well-signposted
- ✓ Leave plenty of white space on each page – it's easier on the eye
- ✓ Keep standards up! Writer fatigue soon becomes apparent
- ✓ Write with clarity, use simple language and short sentences
- ✓ Proof read your project prior to submission
- ✓ Number all pages and appendices and ensure they are cross-referenced
- ✓ Only include appendices which are relevant and useful
- ✓ It is not necessary to produce your project in colour. However, a high standard of business presentation is required
- ✓ When binding your project, do not enclose each page in plastic
- ✓ Write as if you are preparing to present the document to senior executives in your organisation!

17 Assessment Criteria

Projects are assessed using eight Assessment Headings. Each assessment heading attracts a total of 100 marks.

Summary of Assessment Headings:

1. Executive Summary/Introduction
2. Situation/ Market Analysis
3. International Business Strategy
4. Financial / Budgetary considerations/projections
5. Implementation & Evaluation
6. Summary & Conclusions
7. Reflective Learning/Learning Outcomes
8. Format and presentation

18 Frequently Asked Questions

What happens if my Project is lost in the post?

Projects do get lost in the post which is why it is your responsibility to keep a hard copy of your submitted final project. We strongly recommend all projects to be sent via Recorded/Tracked delivery post.

What mark is required for a Pass?

The pass mark for each unit of the Level 5 Diploma in Recruitment Leadership is determined after all work has been assessed. Drawing on past examinations, it is likely that you will need to achieve approximately 60% to be awarded a pass in this module. Assessors do not, however, make a pass/fail decision; this is ultimately the responsibility of the Level 5 Diploma in Recruitment Leadership Awarding Committee.

What happens if my submitted Project does not match the approved proposal?

This will almost certainly require your project to be referred for special scrutiny and you may be asked to resubmit. It is fundamental that your project relates to your original proposal.

What if my Project is late?

Late entries will only be accepted in exceptional circumstances.
